

Arturo Fernandez says: “It’s hard to live in a country that has freedom of speech as one of the God-given rights, so to speak, and then you don’t even feel like you can be open about who you are. Undocumented people aren’t the only people like that, you know, but we are a group like that. Sometimes you don’t feel like you have that voice. Berkeley graduate school has kind of given me that voice back.”
